Keymacro is a utility for the creation and management of large data files in DOS. It includes the facilities to specify the file format and structure, the type of data to be placed in the file and its size. The user can create a simple ASCII file or a headerless disk which can be later edited. Keymacro is intended to be a tool for use in a wide range of applications. The program is designed to support large amounts of data and allow the user to manipulate the file in a fast and efficient manner. Keymacro allows you to define a file structure, specify the data in the file and perform a lot of operations with the file content. Keymacro supports several file types and allows you to combine data of various types. You can insert a simple header and end it with the necessary information. You can define the type of data which you want to insert, the size of the fields and their position in the file. You can specify how you want to access your data in the file. If you want to use a table of contents, you can do so in any way you like. You can also create an array of data for the main file and later refer to it as required. Keymacro has many features to support file processing. The program allows you to choose from among several functions of file manipulations: save, save as, insert, delete, move, compress, expand, compare and many more. In addition to that, you can insert or delete fields and sub-fields, edit header or footer, save an image of the file and create archives. Abaco: You are working in the field and your imagination is just out of your reach, because you are just so many days away from a three-star hotel. It was so close, you could feel it, you could almost smell it, but then the phone rings and reality comes back. “I have a problem at the showroom”. “I don’t know”, you said to yourself, “and I also have to pay for the gas for the day”. “There is no way I can stop the showroom”. So, you have two options: you can pay for the gas and stay for a few hours or just tell them to come at another day. This is an easy decision because it is also a nice day. You decide to go home, because you can’t stand to see their empty faces in the showroom, but at 77a5ca646e
