Minimo Crack + [Win/Mac]

KeyMacro is a simple Chrome extension that allows you to create keyboard shortcuts for any websites you want. With KeyMacro you can easily create your own keyboard shortcuts (one-click) to quickly access your favorite websites. The idea of KeyMacro is pretty simple: It allows you to quickly launch any website by just pressing a few shortcuts, and then holding it. At first, it sounds quite silly, but when you think about it, isn't it faster and more convenient to just press a few keys instead of clicking on a bookmarklet or opening a new tab?

KeyMacro can be used for your desktop as well as your laptop. In fact, it's even available for your Android phones and tablets! If you're using a tablet, then you can try the "Touch Pack", which is available in the Market. Features You can't create shortcuts for any site that doesn't support keyboard shortcuts. By default, the extension will automatically create a shortcut for some sites, like Gmail and Facebook. You can also use the "Create Your Own" function to add more shortcuts. Besides that, the extension has a very neat and useful little feature: You can assign your shortcuts to any bookmarklet, URL, or website address. That's right, you can launch websites with just a few clicks. How to Use KeyMacro Open the extension, then you can either type in a shortcut or create one on the fly. Click on the plus icon. A pop-up menu will appear, listing some predefined shortcuts (Facebook, Gmail, etc). If you want to add a shortcut for a website that's not in the list, then you have to click on the "Create your own" option. There are a lot of options you can set, like the URL, the KeyModifiers, and the background color. You can also set the location of the shortcuts you create, using "Automatic" or "On top". You can also select if the shortcut will be created when you click on the "New tab" button or not.

When you're done, you can either click on "OK" or "Create".

Advantages and

Disadvantages The main advantage of the extension is that you can create keyboard

A new tab page is an important part of using a browser. It shows you your most recent visits to websites and keeps track of links you've opened, even when you close your browser. Chrome new tab page, however, can get very boring. There's just too much information that you have to see to get a good idea of what you've been up to recently. That's why the Chrome Browser Extensions team is working on Chrome extensions to make the new tab page more interesting. Now one of those extensions is Minimo. Minimo is an extension that provides you with a new tab page with interesting pieces of information you might want to keep an eye on. This extension is based on a concept called "monostable". It is very simple. One important benefit of this is that you never have to worry about pressing new tab anymore. Minimo does that for you. In this article, you'll learn how to install Minimo and see how to use it.

NOTE: Minimo is currently in beta.
