We further find Caudill's use of the police dog, and the subsequent use of the battering ram in the course of the search, to be de minimis in the context of the totality of the circumstances. In determining whether the use of force is de minimis, we must consider the facts and circumstances surrounding the incident. See Hope v. Pelzer, 536 U.S. at 730

You have at least one "embedded beta testers" with this account. and then the instruction. you must provide a valid iPhone/iPad/iPod touch device to the App Store to be beta-tested. As I'm not using an iPhone I'm a bit confused. And if I can't use an iPhone or iPhone, what can I do in this case? A: Here is a screenshot of the error, I think you are using an old account. And here is a screenshot to confirm the error is not related to the iOS beta version. Theoretical and experimental study of the adsorption of benzo-18-crown-6 on a water surface in the presence of 1-propanol. The adsorption of benzo-18-crown-6 (B18C6) on a water surface in the presence of 1-propanol was studied using surface tension, Brewster angle microscopy (BAM), and atomic force microscopy (AFM). Experimental results showed that the adsorption of B18C6 was positively correlated to the molar concentration of 1-propanol and decreased as the molar concentration of 1-propanol increased. The maximum number of B18C6 molecules was obtained at a 1-propanol concentration of 0.5 mol/L. BAM and AFM images showed that the B18C6 molecules adsorbed on the water surface in the presence of 1-propanol were monolayer adsorption. The surface tension was positively correlated to the molar concentration of 1-propanol, and decreased as the molar concentration of 1-propanol increased. The adsorption of B18C6 on the water surface was exothermic. The thermodynamic analysis of the adsorption process suggested that the adsorption was a spontaneous and enthalpy-driven process. The theoretical mechanism revealed that 1-propanol disrupted the hydrogen bonds of the water surface, and the interm
