What's new in Vincere Totus Astrum:

Astrea the Oracle takes up her signature gold ball and slowly scans the ceiling in the dark, listening to the building's groan. It is curious that the stress from watching the multi-boxed monitor falls on her, yet her thick, bronze hair coils in all directions on her shoulders. She is a strange young woman with a mien that is all class and grace. Her physical presence should be at once exalting and inspiring, but it is not. After all, shouldn't beauty be a blessing—or so they all say? After she has compiled data from every possible angle, she wonders aloud—"I wonder why this building no longer hears my words...after all, I am but one of many. Though, I should not complain; it is a building made of love." Instantly, she moves towards the wall and begins to chant, her frail voice hoarse and raspy in the large chamber. In her mind she sees a series of people, objects, and locations converge in a giant web. She grabs a thick black brush, paints three small, delicate touches onto the junction of a junction—then sights up towards the ceiling, painting yet another colored portion. After a few minutes, it is clear that she sees a lot more where these scattered though invisible dots originate. "Oh, is that all?" She turns her round, pale face towards the door, smiling with the perfect white teeth that can make a man happy, but sours quickly after she realizes she wants answers, and needs them now. "Please do not take what I tell you to be gospel. It is merely my own research into each answer—I have confined my focus to this one building. I am nothing if not thorough." She seems pleased with herself—save the fact that she is acting far too calm and collected for a girl who is about to embark into a perilous and unknown situation. "Astrea?" A man's voice calls her name. She turns and looks him straight in the eye. "Yes." He sits up in his chair, the room seeming smaller to him all of a sudden. "Come here. Please don't go all Professor Creepy on us. This is not the sphere forum." She smiles easily. "Alright, but only because my path is
